A Neat New Source For NYC Real Estate News: IntoTheBox.TV

Hat tip to InfoTheBox.TV for contacting me. Their website is a blast to explore and covers... well... here is what they have to say about that...

IntoTheBox is all about peering inside the surreal housing market here in New York City. With approximately 13 million people residing in the New York Metropolitan area — and available housing at an absolute premium — it's no wonder the market has been compared to a blood sport. People will lie, cheat and steal for a small slice of the scrumptious real estate pie.

IntoTheBox takes a look at the news, trends and politics of the NYC real estate market. The stories here are even better than fiction. Our daily videocasts provide you with an intimate view of the way New Yorkers cope with the absurdities of living in the best city in the world.

Show us your pictures, send in your comments and join the dialogue with the community that is now IntoTheBox. Enjoy!

So... we're going to follow along and watch the Video info they come up with over there. From what I've seen so far, looks like it will be fun to watch. Here is the first double-feature installment for NYCbubble readers... Enjoy!
